

"We do hereby certify that we supervise the arrangements for all the Monthly and Semi-Anonal Drawings of the Louis-iana State Lottery Company, and in per-son manage and control the Drawings themselves, and that the same are conducted with honesty, fairness, and a good faith towards all parties, and we author-ize the Company to use this certificate, with fac-similes of our signatures attached, in its advertisements."

We the undersigned sanks and Bankers will pay all Prizes drawn in The Louisiana State Lotteries which may be presented at our counters.

J. H. OGLESBY. Pres. Louisiana Nat'l Bank. P. LANAUX, Pres. State Nat'l Bank. A. BALDWIN. Pres. New Orleans Nat'l Bank. KARL KOHN.

NPRECEDENTED ATTRACTION !
Over Half a million Distributed

Pres. Union Nat'l Bank.

Louisiana State Lottery Co. Incorporated in 1868 for 25 years by the Legislature for Educational and Charitable purposes—with a capital of $1,000,000—to which a reserve fund of over $550,000 has since been added.

By an overwhelming popular vote its fran-chise was made a part of the present State Constitution adopted December 2d A. D., 1879. The only lottery ever voted on and en-dorsed by the people of any State. It never scales or postpones.

Its Grand Single Number Drawings take place Monthly, and the Semi-Annual Drawings Regularly every six months, June and December. A SPLENDID OPPORTUNITY TO WIN A FORTUNE. SEVENTH GRAND DRAWING, CLASS G, IN THE ACADEMY OF MUSIC, NEW ORLEANS, TUESDAY, JULY 12th, 1887-206th Monthly Drawing.

CAPITAL PRIZE, $150,000.

Notice—Tickets are $10 only. Halves
$5. Fifths. $2. Tenths $1.

	- Gr.	Lumb, 4m	Tourno Ave
		LIST OF PR	IZES.
10	CAPIT	AL CRIZE OF	$150,0005	150,000
10	HAN	DPRIZEOF	50,000	DULL
16	HAN	D PRIZE OF	20,000	20,004
2.1	ARG	E PRIZES OF	10.000	20,00
41	ARG	EPRIZESUF	5,000	20,004
20 PRIZES OF			1,000	20,00
50	do		500	25,000
100	do		300	80,000
200	do		200	40,000
500	do		100	50,000
1000	do		50	50,000
		APPROXIMATIO	N PRIZES.
100 Approximation Prizes of			of $300	830,00k
Add to produce the state of the			Charle	90 OW

...$585 00 2.179 Prizes amounting to Application for rates to clubs should be made only to the office of the Company in New Orleans.

100..... 10,000

For further information write clearly giving full address. POSTAL NOTEN, Expressionally Orders, or New York Exchange it ordinary letter, Currency by Express (at our M. A. DAUPHIN, New Orleans, La.

or M. A. DAUPHIN, Washington, D. C.

Address Registered Letters to REMEMBER That the presence of Gen ly, who are in charge of the drawings, is guarantee of the old property. It is the changes are all equal and that no one can possibly divine what number will draw a prize.

a prize.

REMEMBER that the payment of al Prizes is GUARANTEED BY FOUR NATIONAL BANKS of New Orleans, and the Tickets are signed by the President of an Institution, whose chartered rights are recognized in the highest Courts; therefore, bewart of any institutions or anonymous schemes.

BEAST! Mexican Mustang

Liniment

Contracted Muscles, Sciatica Scratches, Sprains, Lumbago, Eruptions, Hoof Ail, Rheumati Strains, Stitches, Bealds. Stiff Joints Screw Worms Strugs, Backache, Swinney, Bites, Galls, Saddle Galls, Piles, Britises Sorea, Spavin Buniops Corns Cracks,

THIS GOOD OLD STAND-BY

accomplishes for everybody exactly what is claimed the Mustang Lintment is found in its universal applicability. Everybody needs such a medicine The Lumberman needs it in case of accident. The Housewife needs it for general family use. The Canuler needs it for his teams and his men. The Mechanic needs it always on his work

The Miner needs it in case of emergency. The Pleneer needs it—can't get along without it. The Farmer needs it in his house, his stable, and als stock yard.

The Steamboat man of the Boatman needs it in liberal supply affoat and ashore.

The Horse-fancier needs it-it is his best friend and safest reliance. The Stock-grower needs it-it will save him ds of dollars and a world of trouble. The Railroad man needs it and will need it so long as his life is a round of accidents and dangers. The Backwoodsman needs it. There is nothng like it as an antidote for the dangers to life, b and comfort which surround the ploneer. The Merchant needs it about his store among is employees. Accidents will happen, and when less come the Hustang Linkment is wanted at once.

Keepa Bottle in the House, 'Tis the best of Keep a Bottle in the Factory. Its immediate use in case of accident saves pain and loss of wages. Keep a Bottle Always in the Stable for

CHICAGO COTTAGE ORGAN

ORGAN WAR-BANTED FOR FIVE YEARS

EVERY

These Organs are celebrated for volume quality of tone, quick response, artistic design beauty in finish, perfect construction, making them the most desirable organs for homes schools, churches, lodges, societies, etc.

ESTABLISHED REPUTATION. UNEQUALED FACILITIES, SKILLED WORKMEN, BEST MATERIAL

COMBINED, MAKE THIS

THE POPULAR ORGAN

Instruction Books and Plano Stools. Catalogues and Price Lists, on application, Fana CHICAGO COTTAGE ORGAN CO.

831 Blue Island Avenue, CHICAGO, ILL.

CHAS. G. SNITH. ALEX. R. GHOLSON.

SMITH & GHOLSON, ATTORNEYS AND

Will practice in all the Courts of Montgomery, Houston and Stewart Counties and in the Supreme and Fe leval Courts at Nashville.

OFFICE: Up-stairs in Chancery Block, on Strawberry street, Clarksville, Tenn.

Kentucky New Era: "Ought's er ought an' figger's er figger; all fer de white man, none fer de nigger."— O'Bradley's Campaign Arithmetic.

SHE: A-History of Adventure

By J. RIDER HAGGARD.

CHAPTER XIX. "GIVE ME A BLACK GOAT."

The conversation after this was of such a desultory order that I do not quite recollect it. For some reason, perhaps from a desire to keep her identity and character in reserva, Ayesha did not talk freely, as she usually did Presently, however, she informed Leo that she had arranged a dance that night for our ment. I was astonished to hear this, es I fancied that the Amahagger were much oo gloomy a folk to indulge in any such frivolity; but, as will presently more clearly appear, it turned out that an Amahagger iance had little in common with such fantes tic festivities in other countries, savage or civilized. Then, as we were about to withdraw, she suggested that Leo might like to see some of the wonderful caves, and as he gladly assented to this, thither we departed, accompanied by Job and Billali. To describe our visit would only be to repeat a great deal of what I have already said. The tombs we entered were indeed different, for the whole rock was a honeycomb of sepulchers, but the contents were nearly always the same Afterward we visited the pyramid of bone that had haunted my dreams on the previous right, and from thence went down a long assage to one of the great vaults occupied by the bodies of the poor citizens of the Imperial

Kor. These bodies were not nearly so well preserved, and many of them had no linen covering on them, also they were buried from 500 to 1,000 in a single large vault, the corpect in many instances being thickly piled one spon and her, like a heap of slain. When we had finished inspecting the caves we returned and had our meal, for it was now past 4 in the afternoon, and we needed ome food and rest, especially Leo. At 6 o'clock we all, including Job, waited on Avesha, who set to work to terrify our poor servant still further by showing him picture on the rool of water in the font like vessel She learned from me that he was one of seventeen children and then bid him think of all his brothers and sisters, or as many of them as he could, gathered together in his father's cottage. Then she told him to look in the water, and there, reflected from its stilly surface, was that dead scene of many years gone by, as it was recalled to our poor servant's brain. Some of the faces were clear enough. but some were mere blurs and splotches, or with one feature grossly exaggerated; the fact being that, in these instances, Job had been unable to recall the exact appearances of the individuals, or remember them only by a peculiarity of his tribe, and the water could only reflect what he saw with his mind's eye For it must be remembered that She's power in this matter was strictly limited; she could apparently, except in very rare instances, only photograph upon the water what was actually in the mind of some one present, and then only by his will. But if she was per sonally acquainted with a locality she could. as in the case of ourselves and the whaleboat, throw its reflection upon the water, and also the reflection of anything extraneous that was passing there at the time. This power, however, did not extend to the minds of others. After about an hour of this amusement the mutes by signs indicated that Billali was waiting for an audience. Accordingly be was told to "crawl up," which he did as awkwardly as usual, and announced that the dance was ready to begin if She and the white strangers would be pleased to attend. Shortly afterward we all rose, and Ayesha having thrown a dark cloak (the same, by the way, that she had worn when I saw her cursing by the fire) over her white wrappings, we started The dance was to be held in the open air, on the smooth, rocky plateau in front of the great cave, and thither we made our way. About fifteen paces from the mouth of the cave we found three chairs placed, and here we sat and waited, for as yet no dancers were to be seen. The night was almost, but not quite, dark, the moon being not risen as yet, which made us wonder how we should be able to see the dancing.

"Thou wilt presently understand," said Ayesi a, with a little laugh, when Leo asked her, and we certainly did. Scarcely were the words out of her mouth when from every point we saw dark forms rushing up, bearing with them what we at first took to be enormous flaming torches. Whatever they were they were barning furiously, for the flames stood out a yard or more behind each bearer. On they came, fifty or more of them, looking like devils from hell with their flaming burdens. Lee was the first to discover what these burdens were.

"Great heaven!" he shouted; "they are corpses on fire!"

I stared, and stared again. He was perfectly right; the torches that were to light entertainment were human mummies from the caves!

On rushed the bearers of the flaming corpses, and meeting at a spot about twenty paces in front of us, built their ghastly burdens crossways into a huge bonfire. Heavens how they roared and flared! No tar barrel could have burned as those munimies did. Nor was this all. Suddenly I saw one great fellow seize a flaming buman arm that had fallen from its parent frame and rush off into the darkness. Presently he stopped and a tall streak of fire shot up into the air, illumining the gloom, and also the lamp from which it sprung. The lamp was the mummy of a woman tied to a stout stake let into the rock, and he had fired her hair. On he went a few paces and touched a second, then a third and a fourth, till at last we were surrounded on three sides by a great ring of bodies flaring furiously, the material with which they were preserved having rendered them so inflammable that the flames would literally spout out of the ears and mouth in tongues of fire a foot or more long.

Nero illuminated his gardens with live Christians sonked in tar, and we were now treated to a similar spectacle, probably for the first time since his day, only, happily, our lamps were not living ones. "I promised thee a strange sight, my Holly," laughed Ayesha, whose nerves alone did not seem to be affected, "and, behold, I have not failed thee. Also, it hath its lesson, Trust not to the future, for who knows what the future may bring? Therefore live for the day, and endeavor not to escape the dust which seems to be man's end. What thinkest thou those long forgotten nobles and ladies would have felt had they known that they should one day flare to light the dance or boil the pot of savages? But see, here come the dancers; a merry crew-are they not? The stage is lighted-now for the play.1

As she spoke, we perceived two lines of figures, one male and the other female, to the number of about 100, each advancing round the human bonfire, arrayed only in the usual leopard and buck skins. They formed up, in perfect silence, in two lines facing each other, between us and the fire, and then the dance-a sort of infernal and flendish cancan -began. To describe it is quite impossible but though there was a good deal of tossing of legs and double shuffling, it seemed to our untutored minds to be more of a play than a dance, and, as usual with this dreadful people, whose minds seem to have taken their color from the caves in which they live, and whose jokes and amusements are drawn from the inexhaustible stores of preserved mor-tality with which they share their homes, the subject appeared to be a most ghastly one. I know that it represented an attempted murder first of all, and then the burial alive of the victim and his struggling from the grave, each act of the abominable drama, which was carried on in perfect silence, being rounded off and finished with a furiou and most revolting dauce round the suppos victim, who writhed upon the ground in the red light of the fire. Presently, however, this pleasing piece was interrupted. Suddenly there was a slight commotion, and a great powerful woman, whom I had noted as one of the most vigor ous of the dancers, came, made mad and drunken with unholy excitement, bounding and staggering toward us, shricking out as "I want a black goat; I must have a black goat; bring me a black goat!" and down she fell upon the rocky floor, foaming and writhing and shricking for a black goat-about as hideous a spectacle as can well be conceived. Instantly most of the dancers came up, and got round her, though some still continued their capers in the background. "She has got a Devil," sung one of the "Run and get a black goat. There, Devil, keep quiet—keep quiet! You shall have the goat presently. They have gone to fetch it,

"I want a black goat; I must have a black goat!" shrieked the foaming, rolling creature again. "All right, Devil, the goat will be here And so on, till the goat, taken from a neighboring kraal, did at last arrive, being dragged, bleating on to the scene by its "Is it a black one!-is it a black one!

shricked the possessed

"Yes, yes, Devil, as black as night;" then aside, "keep it behind thee; don't let the Devil see it has got a white spot on its rump and another on its belly. In one minute Devil. There, cut its throat, quick. When is the saucer? "The goat! the goat! the goat! Give me the blood of my black goat! I must have it; don't you see I must have it? Oh! oh! oh! give me the blood of the goat.

At this moment a terrifled bah! announce that the poor goat had been sacrificed, and the next minute a woman ran up with a saucer full of the blood. This the possessed creature, who was then raving and foaming her wildest, seized and drank, and was instantly recovered, and without a trace of stantly recovered, and without a trace of hysterics, or fits, or being possessed, or whatever drea ful thing it was she was suffering from. She stretched her arms, smiled faintly, and walked quietly back to the dancers, who presently withdrew in a double line as they had come, leaving the space between us and the bonfire deserted.

I thought the entertainment (see was not over, and feeling sather queer, was about to ask She if we could rise, when suddenly what at first I took to be a baboon came isopping round the fire, and was instantly met upon the other side by a lion, or rather a huma being dressed in a lion's skin. Then came goat, then a man wrapped in an ex's blde with the borns wobbling about in a ludicrous way. After him followed a blesbok, then an impala, then a koodoo, then more goats, and many other animals, including a girl sewn up in the shining scaly hide of a boa constrictor, several yards of which trailed along the ground behind her. When all the beasts had collected they began to dance about in a lumbering, unnatural fashion, and to imitate the sounds produced by the respective animals they represented, till the whole air was alive with roars and bleating and the hissing of snakes. This went on for a long time, till, getting tired of the pantonime, I asked Ayesha if there would be any objection to Lee and myself walking round to inspect the human torches, and as she had nothin against it we started, striking round to the oft. After looking at one or two of the flaming bodies we were about to return, thoroughly disgusted with the weirdness of the spectacle, when our attention was attra by one of the dancers, a particularly active leopard, that had separated itself from its fellow benets, and was whisking about in our immediate neighborhood, but gradually drawing into a spot where the shadow was darkest, equidistant between two of the finmties. Drawn by curiosity, we followed it, when suddenly it darted past us itself and whispered: "Come," in a voice that we both recognized as that of Ustane. Without waiting to consult me, Leo turned and followed her into the outer darkness, and I, feeling sick enough at heart, went after them. The leopard crawled on for about fifty paces a sufficient distance to be quite beyond the light of the fire and torches came up with it, or rather with Ustane. "Oh, my lord," I heard her whisper, "so I have found thee. Listent I am in peril of my life from 'She-who-must-be-obeyed." Surely the Baboon bas told thee how she drove me from thee! I love thee, my lord, and thou art mine according to the custem of the country. I saved thy life. My Lion, wilt thou cast me off now?"

"Of course not," ejaculated Leo. "I have wen wondering whither thou hadst gone. Let us go and explain matters to the queen." "Nuy, nay; she would slay us. Thou knowest not her power; the Baboon there, he knoweth, for he saw. Nay, there is but one way; if thou wilt cleave to me thou must flee with me across the marshes even now, and then perhaps we may escape.

"For heaven's sake, Leo," I began, but she broke in.

"Nay, listen not to him, Swift-be swift: death is in the air we breathe. Even now, maylap, She heareth us," and without more ado, she proceeded to back her arguments by throwing berself into his arms. As she did so the leopard's head slipped from her hair. I saw the three white flager marks upon it, gleaming faintly in the starlight. Once more realizing the desperate nature of the situation, I was about to interpose, for I knew that Leo was not too strong minded where women were concerned—when—oh, herror— I heard a little silvery laugh behind me. turned round, and there was She herself, and with her Billali and two male mutes, gasped and nearly sunk to the ground, for I knew that such a situation must result in some dreadful tragedy, of which it seemed exceedingly probable to me that I should be the first victim. As for Ustane, she untwined her arms and covered her eyes with her hands, while Leo, not knowing the full terror of the position, merely colored up, and looked as silly as a man caught in such a trap would naturally do.

CHAPTER XX. TRIUMPH.

Then followed a moment of the most painful silence that I ever endured. It was broken by Ayesha, who addressed herself to Leo. "Nay, now, my lord and guest," she said, in her softest tones, which yet had the ring of steel about them, "look not so bashful. Surely the sight was a pretty one-the leopard and

"Oh, hang it all!" said Leo, in English. "And thou, Ustane," she went on, "surely I should have passed thee by had not the light fallen on the white across thy hair. Well: well! the dance is done—see, the tapers have burned down, and all things end in darkness and in ashes. So thou thoughtest it a fit time for love, Ustane, my servant—and I, dreaming not that I could be disobeyed, thought thee already far away."

"Play not with me," moaned the wretched woman; "slay me, and let there be an end." "Nay, why? It is not well to go so swift from the hot lips of love down to the cold mouth of the grave," and she made a motion to the mutes, who instantly stopped up and caught the girl by either arm. With an oath Leo sprung upon the nearest, and hurled him to the ground, and then stood over him with his face set and his fist ready.

Again Ayesha laughed. "It was well thrown, my guest; thou hast a strong arm for one who so late was sick. But now out of thy courtesy I pray thee let that man live and do my bidding. He shall not harm the girl; the night air grows chill, and I would velcome ber in mine own place. Surely she I hate thee, I say." whom thou dost favor shall be favored of me

I took Leo by the arm, and pulled him from love strate mute, and he half hewildered obeyed the pressure. Then we all set out for the cave across the plateau, where a great pile of white human ashes was all that remained of the fire that had lit the dancing, for the dancers had vanished.

In due course we gained Ayesha's boudoirall too soon it seemed to me, having a sad presage of what was to come lying heavy on my Ayesha seated horself upon her cushions, and having dismissed Job and Billali, by signs bade the mutes tend the lamps and retire, all save one girl, who was her favorite personal attendant. We three remained standing, the unfortunate Ustane a little to the left of the rest of us.

"Now, O Holly," Ayesha began, "how came it that thou who didst hear my words bidding this evil doer"-and she pointed to "to go from hence—thou at whose Ustane prayer I did weakly spare her life-how canfe it, I say, that thou wast a sharer in what I saw to-night? Answer, and for thine own sake, I say, speak the truth, for I am not minded to hear lies upon this matter."

"It was by accident, O queen," I answered, "I knew naught of it," "I do believe thee, O Holly," she answered, coldly; "and well it is for thee that I do. Then does all the guilt rest upon her."

"I don't see any particular guilt about it," broke in Leo. "She is not anybody else's wife, and it appears that she has married me according to the custom of this awful place, so who is the worse! Anyway, madame," he went on, "whatever she has done, I have done, too, so if she is to be punished, let me be punished also; and I tell thee," he went on, working himself up into a fury, "that if thou biddest one of those deaf and dumb villains to touch her againt I will tear him to pieces." And he looked as though he meant it.

Ayesha listened in ky silence, and made no remark. When he had finished, however, she addressed Ustane.

"Hast thou aught to say, woman? Thou silly straw, fron feather, who dielst think to float toward thy passion's petty ends, even against the great wind of my will! Tell me, for I fain would understand. Why didst thou this thing?"

And then I think I saw the most tremen does exhibition of moral courage and intrepidity that it is possible to conceive. the poor doomed girl, knowing what she had to expect at the hands of her terrible queen, knowing, too, from bitter experience, how great was her power, yet gathered herself together, and out of the very depths of de-

"I did it, O queen," she answered, drawing herself up to the full of her stately height and throwing back the panther skin off her head, "because my love is stronger than the grave. I did it because my life without this man whom my heart chose would be but a living death. Therefore did I risk my life; and now that I know that it is forfeit to thine anger yet am I glad that I did risk it, and pay it away in the risking, ay, because he embraced me once and told me that he yet

Here Ayesha half rose from her couch and then sunk down again. "I have no magic," went on Ustane, her rich voice ringing strong and full, "and I am not a queen, nor do I live forever, but a woman's heart is heavy to sink through waters, however deep, O queen. And a woman's eyes are quick to see, even through thy vell, O queen.

"Listen; I know it; thou dost love this man thyself, and therefore weuldst thou destroy me who stand across thy path. Ay, I dis-I and go into the da whither I go. But this I know. There is whither I go. But this I know. There is a light snining in my breast, and by that light, as by a lamp, I see the truth and the future that I shall not share unroll itself before me like a scroll. When first I knew my lord," and she pointed to Leo, "I knew also that death would be the bridal gift he gave me; it rushed upon me of a sudden, but I turned not back before me in the content of the strong me in the school of t back, being ready to pay the price, and, be-hold, death is here! And now, even as I knew that, so do I, standing on the steps of doon, know that then shalt not reap the profits of thy crime. Mine he is, and though thy beauty shine like a sun among the stars mine shall be remain for thee. Never here upon this earth shall be look thee in the eyes and call thee wife. Thou, too, art doomed. I see"—and her voice rung like the cry of an inspired prophetess; "ah, I see"—

Then came an answering cry of mingled rage and terror. I turned my head, Ayesha had risen, and was standing with her out-stretched hand pointing at Ustane, who had suddenly stopped speaking. I gazed at the poor woman, and as I gazed there grew upon her face that same woful, fixed expression of terror that I had seen once before when she had broken out into her wild chant. Her eyes grew large, her nostrils dilated, and her lips blanched. Ayesha said nothing; she made no sound Ayesha said nothing; she made no sound, she only drew herself up, stretched out her arm, and, her tall velled frame quivering like an aspen leaf, appeared to look fixedly at her victim. Even as she did so Ustane put her hands to her head, uttered one piercing scream, turned round twice, and then fell backward with a thud prone upon the floor. Both Leo and myself rushed to her-she was stone dead-blasted into death by some mysterious electric agency or overwhelming will force whereof the dread She had com

For a moment Leo did not quite realize what had happened. But when he did his face was awful to see. With a savage oath he rose from beside the corpse, and turning, literally spring at Ayesha. But she had been watching, and seeing him coming, stretched out her hand again, and he came staggering back toward me, and would have fallen had I not caught him. Afterward he told me that he felt as though he had sud-denly received a violent blow in the chest, and, what is more, cowed as though all the manhood had been taken out of him.

Then Ayesha spoke. "Forgive me, my guest," she said, softly, addressing him, "if I have shocked thee with my justice."

"Forgive me, thou fiend," roared poor Leo, wringing his hands in his rage and grief—

"forgive thee, thou murderess! By heaven, I will kill thee if I can!"

"Nay, nay," she answered in the same soft voice, "thou dost not understand—the time has come for thee to learn. Thou art my love, my Kallikrates—my Beautiful, my Strong! For 2,000 years, Kallikrates, have I waited for thee, and now at length thou hast come back to me; and as for this woman," pointing to the corpse, "she stood between me and thee, and therefore I have removed her, Kallikrates."

"It is an accursed lie!" screamed Leo. "My name is not Kallikrates! I am Leo Vincey; mame is not Kallikrates! I am Leo Vincey; my ancestor was Kallikrates—at least I be-lieve he was."

"Ah, thou sayest it; thine ancestor was Kallikrates, and thou, even thou, art Kalli-krates come back—and mine own dear lord!"

"I am not Kallikrates, and as for being thy lord, or having anything to do with thee, I had rather be the lord of a fiend from bell, or she would be better than thou."

"Sayest thou so—sayest thou so, Kalli-krates! Nay, but thou hast not seen me for so many years that no memory remains. Yet am I very fair, Kallikrates!"

"I hate thee, murderess, and do not wish to see thee. What is it to me how fair thou art!

"Yet, within a very little space shalt thou creep to my knee and swear that thou dost mocking laugh. "Come, there is no time like the present time; here, before this dead girl who loved thee, let us put it to the proof.'

"Look now on me, Kallikrates!" and with a udden motion she shook her gauzy covering from her and stood forth in her low kirtle and her snaky zone, in her glorious, radiant beauty and her imperial grace, rising from her wrappings, as it were, like Venus from the wave, or Galatea from her marble, or a beautiful spirit from the tomb. She stood forth and fixed her deep and glowing eyes upon his own, and I saw his clinched fists unlasp and his set and quivering features relax penenth her gaze. I saw his worder and astonishment grow inte admiration, and then into fascination; and the more he struggled the more I saw the power of her dread beauty fasten on him and take possession of his senses, drugging them and drawing the heart out of him. Did I not know the process! Had not I, who was twice his age, gone through it myself! Was I not going through it afresh even then, though her sweet and passionate gaze was not for mo! Yes, alas, I was. Alas, that I should have to confess that at that very moment I was rent by mad and furious jealousy. I could have flown at his throat, shame upon me! That woman had confounded and almost destroyed my moral sense, as she was bound to confound all who looked upon her superhuman loveliness. Busomehow, I do not know how, I got the better of myself, and once more turned to see the climax of the tragedy. "Oh, beavens!" gasped Leo, "art thou & woman?

"A woman in truth-in very truththine own spouse, Kallikrates," she answered, stretching out her rounded ivory arms to-ward him and smilling, ah, so sweetly! He looked and looked, and slowly I per-ceived that he was drawing nearer to her.

Suddealy his eye fell upon the corpse of poor Ustane, and he shuddered and stopped "How can If" be said, hoarsely. "Thou art murderess. She loved me."

Observe, he was already forgetting that he had loved her. "It is naught," she marmured, and her voice sounded as the night wind passing through the trees. "It is naught at all. If I have sinned, let my beauty moswer for my sin. If I have sinned it is for love of thee; let my sin, therefore, be put away and for-gotten;" and once more she stretched out her arms and whispered, "Come," and then in strugglo—I saw him even turn to fly; but her eyes drew him stronger than iron bonds, and the slaughter house fiend replied: "Gimme two bits—the magic of her beauty and concentrated will me raised bell." And Lady Churchanother few seconds it was over. I saw him and passion entered into him and overpow-ered him—ay, even there—in the presence of the body of the remark of the body of the remark of the land overpow-to like Randy."—Omalia Bee. the body of the woman who had loved him well enough to die for him. It sounds horrible and wicked enough, but he cannot be blamed too much, and be sure his sin will find him out. The temptress who drew him into evil was more than buman, and her beauty was greater than the loveliness of the "Perchance thou dost not believe my word, Kallikrates—perchance thou thinkest that I do delude thee, and that I have not lived these many years, and that thou hast not en born again to me. Now will I show thee, and thee also, my Holly, who dost stand staring there as though of a truth thou hadst taken root in this unkindly soil. Bear each one of you a lamp, and follow after me whither I shall lead ye."

Without pausing to think—indeed, speak-ing for myself, I had almost abandoned the think seemed to be also thought fell hourly helpless against a black wall of wonder—we took the lamps and fol-lowed her. Going to the end of her "bou-doir," she reised a curtain and revealed a little stair of the sort that was so common in these dim caves of Kor. As we hurried down the stair I observed that the steps were worn in the center to such an extent that some of them had been reduced from seven and a half inches, at which I guessed their original height, to about three and a half. Now, as all the other steps that I had seen in the caves had been practically unworn, as was to be ex-pected, seeing that the only traffic that over passed upon them was that of those who bore a fresh burden to the temb, this fact struck my notice with that curious pertinacity with which little things do strike when our minds are absolutely overwhelmed with a run of powerful sensations, beaten flat, as it were, like a sea beneath a hurricane, so that every little object on the surface stands up like a mountain. At the bottom of the staircase I stood and stared at the worn steps, and She, turning, saw me. "Wonderest thou whose are the feet that have worn away the rock, my Holly?" she asked. "Behold! they are mine—even mine own light feet! I can remember when the stairs were fresh and level, but for 2,000 years have I gone down hither day by day; and see, my sandals have worn out the solid rock."

I made no answer, but I do not think that anything that I had heard or seen brought bome to my limited understanding so clear a sense of this being's overwhelming antiquity as that hard rock bollowed out by her soft as that hard rock hollowed out by her soft white feet. How many millions of times must she have passed up and down that stair to bring about such a result?

The stair led to a tunnel, and a few paces down the tunnel was one of the usual curtain hung doorways, a glance at which told me it was the same where I had been a witness of that terrible scene by the leaping flame. I recognized the pattern of the curtain, and the sight of it brought the whole awant vividly recognized the pattern of the curtain, and the sight of it brought the whole event vividly before my eyes and made me tramble even at its memory. Ayesha entered the tomb (for it was a tomb) and we followed her—I, for one, rejoicing that the mystery of the plans was about to be cleared up and yet afraid to face its solution.

[To be Continued.]

Various Opinions. St. Louis Republican: Bobby was

St. Louis Republican: Bobby was in the parlor when Albertus called, and Maud was up stairs getting ready to present herself.

"Good evening, Robert," said Albertus, briskly; "Miss Maud has not arrived yet, I see?"

"Nope," replied Bobby, carelessly, "she's makin' something, I s'pose."

"Industry, Robert, is a shining virtue. But what is Miss Maud making?"

"I dunno; they were talkin' about you at the table, and Maud said she was makin' a mash, ma said she was makin' hay while the sun shines, and pa said she was makin' a fool of herself.

THE Columbia Herald gives this clear definition of Democracy, and there is no uncertain ring in it: "Democracy is the party of the people. It is opposed to monopolies, is opposed to class legislation, is opposed to giving the taxes of one man to the building up and sustaining the business of another. Democracy gives every man an equal chance and pays no tribute shall be collected for a feet of the feet the fostering of "infant industries" (?)" Democracy is opposed to protiction and protective tariffs. The to my knee and swear that thou dost history of the party teaches this, and by no sort of construction can ting laugh. "Come, there is no time like the last platform be made to mean anything else than tariff reform, and free trade as opposed to protect

An End to Bone Scraping.

Edward Shepherd, of Harrisburg Ill., says: "Having received so much benefit from Electric Bitters, I feel it my duty to let suffering humanity know it. Have had a running sore on my leg for eight years; my doctors told me I would have to have the bone scirped or leg amputated. I used, anstead, three bottles of Electric Bitters and seven boxes Bucklen's Arnica Salve, and my leg is now sound and well." Electric Bitters are sold at fifty cents a bottle, and Bucklen's Arnica Salve at 25c. per box by Owen &

A TRAMP printer recently fell into A TRAMP printer recently fell into the hands of the St. Paul police, who took him to court. "I'm sorry, Bill," said the Judge. "I've let you go so many times, but I think that this time I'll have to put you at work on the stone pile for about thirty days." "All right, Judge," responded Bill; "you've got verything in your own hands, and can do as you please, but I'll tell you right do as you please, but I'll tell you right now that I'm no geologist, although a student of nature." It is said that Bill was discharged.

An invitation is out to all ex-Confederate Tennesseeans and old Mexican Veterans to attend a social reunion at Dallas, Texas, August 17th, 18th, and 19th and a good time is guaranteed all who attend. The invitation is signed Joe Bruster, President army Tennessee; Capt. W. M. Cooper, Vice-Presiden army Tennessee; J. M. Broyles, Vice-President army Tennessee; W. F. McCannon, Secretary army Tennessee; L. Pink Taylor, orderly Sergeant army Tennessee nessee.

IT was something like a breach of etiquette, the other day, when Lady & Churchill asked Red Shirt if he liked

"I deeply regret it, sir, but bonor and my altered circumstances compel me to release your daughter from her engagement. I cannot enter your family a beggar. In the recent deal in the North End stocks, I lost my entire fortune." "Not another word my boy, not another, I got it."—San Francisco Examiner

THE Tennessee Press Association will meet at Coudland, on Roane Mountain, Thursday, July 7.

The total railroad mileage in the United States at the close of 1886 was